Background

The House Barbell Club is one of the finest training facilities in Peoria Illinois. A recent renovations helped shape this space to become one of the premier workout destinations in Central Illinois. Upon completion, Pearl Technology was asked to come in and "make the place rock".

The Challenge

Three separate workout zones that need different music genres playing at one time required distribution and zone controls that were user friendly. The client also wanted the flexibility for the entire space to act as one large zone.

The Solution and Products

A series of powered loudspeakers were placed throughout the 4,000 square foot facility. From the largest training space to the smaller workout rooms, adequate audio coverage was a must. Large subwoofers ensure gym goes "feel the bass" throughout the entire facility.

A digital signal processor and touch panel controls placed throughout the facility allow both members and staff to control the music and volume. The ability for members to hook up their own music players was also provided.

The House Barbell Club has created a one of a kind workout experience and Pearl Technology is proud to be a part of their success.
